Violence Must Stop.

The public generally is in sympathy with the striking miners in their demand for better pay. There is no class of labor which is so poorly paid, all things considered, and the country will hail the day when the strike now in progress is settled upon a basis which will grant to the men who pursue a calling fraught with so much danger and so many sacrifices, adequate wages—wages that will enable them to feed and clothe their families, educate their children, and provide them with comfortable homes.

All this being true, it does not follow that the men who are making these just demands are having their cause strengthened or their hold on public sympathy increased by the deeds of violence which have been committed during the past few weeks in their name, and which have not only put at defiance the laws of the country, but have resulted in murder and arson. It is true that, in most cases, the deeds of lawlessness have been the work of an ignorant foreign element, and not the work of American and naturalized workmen, but no matter by whom committed, the fact remains that the cause for which the honest miners are contending is suffering in consequence. Primarily the responsibility rests with those employers who brought into the country the undesirable class of labor with its lawless tendencies, but at present the thing to consider is the trend of events now taking place.

It cannot be denied that the lawless acts of maddened men in the mining regions have not met with the hearty disapproval that they should have received from those strikers who claim to be law abiding and opposed to the use of violence in any form. Indeed, in many cases, they have, unintentionally perhaps, by their own interference with the individual rights of those who have had their demands granted to work for wages satisfactory to them, encouraged the violent classes to destroy property and take human life.

As an instance of the truth of this assertion it may be noted that in Illinois, several days ago two or three mines were set on fire by the lawless element among the strikers, and that the strikers, who claimed to be keeping within the limits of the law, in an open meeting decided that they would prevent the extinguishment of the fires. Had it not been for the coming of heavy rains, in all probability there would have been a series of horrors to record as a consequence of this action. In the Illinois and other mining regions murder has been committed and trains have been wrecked, and, although the main body of miners have reestablished direct connection with the crimes, they have taken no action to aid in bringing to justice the perpetrators, or preventing a repetition of the outrages. The well disposed miners and workmen, those who are asking at the hands of the employers a matter of simple justice, owe it to themselves to call a halt and check the cyclone of violence which now seems to be sweeping over the country, before a revolution of public sentiment sets in and takes from them the sympathy they now possess. The strikers can do much more in aid of their cause by upholding the law than by encouraging in the slightest degree its violation.

The "Army of the commonwealers of Christ" played base ball on Sunday, charging an admission fee to the game. The army should either change its manner of observing the day of rest or give up the reincarnation theory.

The Treasury Deficit.

In a bold attempt to misrepresent facts and deceive thoughtless readers the Register publishes the following: Six million dollars deficit for May. Fifteen million dollars deficit for June and July. Twenty-four and a half million dollars deficit for the current fiscal year. Such is the result of Republican extravagance and reckless expenditures. Every dollar that is being spent was appropriated by a Republican Congress. Every dollar of the deficit was created by a Republican Congress. The Republicans and they alone are to blame for this condition of affairs.

This would be an excellent point for the Democratic party if it were only true. The Register knows, or it ought to know, that it is not true that the deficit is due to extravagant and reckless appropriations made by a Republican Congress.

For the last two years of President Harrison's administration the Congress was Democratic, and it was that Congress which made the appropriations now being expended. We have not had a Republican Congress since the Fifty-first Congress expired and the Fifty-third is now in session. The Fifty-second Congress, which was more entitled to be called a billion dollar bill than the one which preceded it, was Democratic, and under its appropriations and owing to the lack of business capacity on the part of the Democratic administration the deficit has occurred.

It is within the recollection of some who are not very old that in 1884 the Democratic party was preferring the awful charge against the Republicans that they had accumulated a surplus in the treasury. According to every Democratic organ and stump speaker in the country a treasury surplus was an outrage, and the demand went up that it should be abolished forthwith—it should be distributed among the people.

After a quarter of a century of Republican rule the treasury was full to overflowing, the credit of the nation was better than it had ever been and the United States was the most prosperous country in the world; the wheels of industry were turning and labor was employed at good wages. The election of a Democratic Congress and President, partly in response to the demand that the treasury surplus must be abolished, disturbed business very little, because with a Republican senate the business world knew that destructive legislation would be impossible. Then came another Republican administration, which closed with the country enjoying unprecedented prosperity. It was not until the people, in a fit of temporary insanity, produced by the demagogic appeals of politicians, elected the Democratic party to full power in the legislative and executive branches of the government, that a terrible period of industrial depression, uncertainty, bank panics and treasury deficits set in.

The Register will continue its desperate efforts to misrepresent and deceive, but it cannot wipe out the facts of history.

Colorado is paying the penalty of electing a Populist governor.

The state's reputation has suffered more by reason of that act than by anything else that could have happened.

A French Politician.

It seems that the most interesting outcome of the ministerial crisis in France is that it forces President Carnot to say whether he is or is not a candidate for re-election. It is also said that Casimir-Perier shrewdly schemed for and courted the defeat in the chamber in order to force himself out of office, so that he might be free to enter the list of candidates himself. This was on the presumption that President Carnot had called M. Casimir-Perier to the premiership in order to shelve a formidable rival.

The tactics adopted by Casimir-Perier are peculiar in American eyes. In the United States a cabinet minister with presidential ambitions would not seek to force an issue to afford him an excuse for resigning and leaving himself with a free hand. He would simply resign, giving no reason at all, and go into the canvass. In Casimir-Perier's case the issue on which his government met defeat was a minor question and did not injure him personally. Had it been one of great moment his standing as a presidential candidate would have suffered greatly. It is this fact that leads to the suspicion that the ex-minister engineered the matter himself.

The coal strike does not affect the 210,000 miners alone. On account of the scarcity of fuel 35,000 other wage-workers are temporarily thrown out of employment and their families are suffering. Unless the strike is soon settled it is probable that the workingmen thrown out on account of the strike will outnumber the strikers themselves.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

A fete was recently given in Berlin in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the entrance of a girl into the service of an distinguished family. Auguste Prill is the name of this modest domestic. The occasion was celebrated in the most brilliant manner, all the members of the family, some of whom lived at a great distance, rallying to do the faithful servant honor, and bringing with them many costly and beautiful gifts.

In his book of "Reminiscences" General D. H. Maury tells of an old Virginia lady reduced to keeping boarders: "Nancy, there's nothing in the house but much for dinner. Give that to my boarders. Young men in the village of Leo, Mo., thought they would like to see what dynamite would do when it exploded. So they touched off a big charge in the center of the town. Nobody was killed, but all the windows of the neighborhood were broken.

DECORATION DAY.

At Grafton—Memorial Services Sunday. Programme for Wednesday's Exercises. Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

GRAFTON, W. VA., May 28.—In pursuance of the usual custom of holding memorial services in honor of the old soldiers on the Sunday preceding Decoration Day, special memorial services were conducted in the Baptist church here. Rev. J. D. Simmons preached an eloquent sermon appropriate to the occasion. Reno Post G. A. R. and the associate organization, the Women's Relief Corps, marched to the church in procession and attended the services. Exercises for the celebration of Decoration Day, on Wednesday, will be conducted on an elaborate scale, and the usual great throng that visits Grafton on May 30 can be depended upon to be present this year.

The oration of the day at the National cemetery will be delivered by the Hon. George C. Sturges, of Morantown.

The multitude of people who come to Grafton every Decoration Day who expect to find amusement and recreation, in addition to attending the memorial services, will not be disappointed. Chief among the attractions for the pleasure seeker will be the races at the fair grounds in the afternoon. There will be five great races given, for which there are about thirty entries, including some of the most famous horses in the state, such as McBride, Shaffer, Harry D. Gay, Harry, Jim Clinker, Billy Raven, and the famous runners Morrissey, Mudge B, Joe B, and others of equal celebrity.

Democratic Politician Meet.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., May 28.—A number of prominent Democratic politicians stopped in this city last night on their way to Wayne county, where circuit court convened to-day. Their mission was political entirely. Ex-Governor Wilson is to address the people at the court house, and besides him are Congressman Capelhart and Judge McCluer. The latter two are candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress. All put up at the same hotel. Many local politicians called on the trio during their stay here.

Peddler Murdered.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., May 28.—Word reached here last night that the dead body of "Con" Brady, an Irish peddler, had been found in the left fork of Twelve Pole river, some distance above Wayne C. THE FIVE SENSES.

Seeing, Hearing, Smelling, Tasting and Feeling—Four of These Senses Are Often Impaired and Even Destroyed by Catarrh.

Drs. Copeland, Bell and Davis are daily brought into contact with many patients suffering from impairment of four of these senses from Catarrh. The eyes are inflamed and ulcerated. The nostrils filled with foul scales and discharging sores.

MR. JAMES L. BURD, 420 Market street, city, was unable to work, sleep or eat for two years, with catarrhal complications. Lost the use of left hand and tongue. Two weeks of our treatment was more beneficial than seven months with three doctors.

The ears ulcerated and affected with roaring, buzzing, hissing noises. And the hearing either greatly impaired or entirely lost from ulceration of the eustachian tubes, and the mucous membrane, extending even to the throat and bronchial tubes.

From this catarrhal inflammation the delicate sense of smell and taste are also either impaired or entirely lost from ulceration of the nasal and oral mucous membrane, extending even to the throat and bronchial tubes. The patients from their continual blowing, sneezing, coughing, and emitting foul odors become objects of scorn to themselves and loathing to their friends and associates. How can sensible men or women be content to become a source of disgust to themselves and loathing to their associates? How can a parent see a child grow up with these senses impaired or destroyed and become an object of scorn to itself and loathing to its comrades, when by the proper treatment at the proper time, all this could be prevented? It is the mission of Drs. Copeland, Bell and Davis to prevent all this suffering and misery. They are treating daily hundreds of such cases with the greatest success, and their rate of treatment is only $5 per month, all medicines included.
